HARRY PERT IS NAMED CO. FAIR PHOTOGRAPHER

Seventeenth district agricultural association board adopted a resolution to make immediate application to the state fairs and expositions allocation board for a total of $95,000 for construction purposes at the Watt park fair grounds.

Of this amount $90,000 would be used for construction of a large exhibition building and temporary bleachers.

Application has already been made for $30,000 to be used for the construction of a home economics exhibition building and rabbit and poultry buildings.

The board was advised to make the $95,000 application by Senator Jesse Mayo, member of the allocations board, when secretary-manager Loyle Freeman and secretary Edith Scott spent a day in Sacramento early last week in connection with the fair construction program.

This advice was seconded by Senator Harold Johnson, who attended the regular meeting of the local fair board.

Johnson also advised that everything possible be done to speed the completion of the master plan of construction at the fair grounds by the state appointed architect.

It was also recommended by Johnson that a local representative be present at meetings in Sacramento of the allocations board to present the local fair boards case, whenever the applications are brought up for action.

With the date of the 1949 fair rapidly approaching, considerable time was devoted to the details of county fair arrangements.

Such business included acceptance of concession applications, arrangements for entertainment features, appointment of Harry Pert, Nevada City as official fair photographer.

No, Folks, It Wasn't Traffic Lights That Were Red Last Friday

No, folks, there aren't any traffic lights in Nevada City. The red you saw came from the faces of the press and Ed Frantz, our high school principal.

It was all because of a group of errors in the awarding or non-awarding of a scholarship at graduation exercises of Nevada City high school last Thursday evening.

Inadvertently omitted from the program was the awarding of a scholarship to St. Mary's Business College, Grass Valley, by the Soroptimist club of Nevada City. It was reported the Business and Professional Women's club presented the scholarship, and then to crown it all, The Nugget, omitted to publish the name of the winner—Miss Betty Sealight.

BRANDY CITY COULD REOPEN SAYS DUFF, CAL-IDA MANAGER

Cooperation of the U. S. forest service could reopen the $750,000 sawmill of the Cal-Ida Lumber company at Brandy City, by July 15, according to George R. Duff, general manager of the firm, speaking before a joint committee of Downieville Lions club and Sierra County Chamber of Commerce.

Duff stated that although the stumpage prices arrived at by the forest service are determined by the average selling prices of about 100 of some 300 mills of the Western Pine association, permitting an estimated profit of 10 per cent, Cal-Ida has terrain and weather conditions, and the long haul to Auburn processing plant makes the Cal-Ida logging costs above average.

Duff declared the greatest detriment is the selection of trees the forest service permits to be cut. He asserted much of the timber Cal-Ida was permitted to cut was fire-scarred, diseased and cut chiefly for sanitation purposes. He added the forest service insisted the company accept approximately 60 per cent fir, and if the forest service would demand only 25 per cent fir, the mill could probably reopen.

STATE ASKS TERMINATION OF CONTRACT

The Nevada county board of supervisors has been asked to terminate the contract between the county and the office of the state comptroller covering the disbursement of old age and needy blind security payments effective July 1, 1949.

The information, received by letter from Thomas H. Kuchel, state comptroller, was released yesterday by County Clerk Ralph E. Deeble.

The letter stated the state office is prepared to perform the the disbursing functions which have been performed by offices of the county auditor and treasurer. On Dec. 10, 1948, a contract was made between the county board of supervisors and the state comptroller to perform disbursing functions covering payment of old age security and security for the needy blind for those eligible in Nevada county. The agreement, unless renewed, terminates on Dec. 31, 1949, but is subject to termination at an earlier date.

The request by the state comptroller for termination of the contract contemplates the payment of old age and needy blind security by the county for the nonth of July, 1949, as of July 1. All further payments after July 1. both supplemental and regular monthly, are to be made by the state office, according to the letter.

Kuchel stated procedures have been agreed upon by the state department of social welfare and the comptroller's office for the future functioning of the two offices in connection with the certification of eligibles, writing of warrants for aid, preparation and audit of rolls, etc.

On May 1, the state office took over the disbursement procedures for a test area in the immediate vicinity of Sacramento covering seven counties. This area covered by direct disbursements will now include additional counties, including Nevada county.

A second contract between the state department of social welfare and Nevada county remains in effect. According to this agreement, the office headed by Kief D. Melberg, will continue to investigate eligibility of payments under old age security and security for the needy blind until the agreement is terminated, which will probably be some time after September.

At this point, as far as the Nevada county recipients of old age and needy blind contract termination means merely that the checks will come out of Sacramento.

Filing Necessary To Collect Old Age And Insurance Claims

Prompt filing of old age and survivors insurance claims is urged by the Sacramento office of the social security administration. George C. Hewitt, manager, reminded all wage earners that payments, whether retirement, survivors monthly, or lump-sum, are not paid automatically.

A claim for any payment under the old age and survivors insurance program must be filed before the payment can be made, and if claims are not filed promptly, benefits may be lost.

David Hartman Hired As Auditor for NID

At the brief morning session the board hired David Hartman as auditor for the remaining six months of the year. Hartman will give a monthly report on the water utility's operations.

The directors authorize the purchase of a four yard carryall addition to N.I.D. equipment for construction maintenance.

DECISION AGAINST FREE SPEECH CURBS . . .

Twitchell Takes Supreme Court to Task

. . . GIVES ELMER REASON TO GRIPE

By H. I. PHILLIPS

TWITCHELL VS. DOUGLAS

"About the only fellow who can get into trouble easily today in America is the one who believes in law and order, pauses for second wind now and then and believes there are limits to breach of the peace," declares Elmer Twitchell. He has been going over the recent supreme court decision by a 5 to 4 vote against curbs on hatred, violence and rabble rousing tactics even when they bring on riots.

"It's the voice-thrower yelling for mob rule who gets an Oscar, a pat on the back, the green light and the embossed permit," added Elmer.

—*—

"It was another one of those photo finishes due to a strong stretch run by Justice Douglas," declares Elmer. "Bill, speaking for the majority opinion, said the authorities have no right to curb speeches no matter how violent or full of hatred. He says that if America is to be vital it has got to have the rabble rousers shoot the works. In other words, we have got to preserve our vitality even if we use our last ounce of strength.

"We are leaning over backwards so far for free speech that those who stop at nothing to scuttle our freedoms are getting the right of way at all times. The demagogue, the earsplitter, the gasbag and the microphone bellyacher are getting a pat on the back, a license to operate with the throttle wide open and a kiss from the high courts. You would think they are the backbone of the country and that the enemy was the quiet, thoughtful, tolerant little guy who always kept his voice down, respected the police and wanted no tear bombs tossed at anybody.

"The five justices held that no speeches should be curbed until it was clearly shown that they might cause trouble 'far above the public inconvenience, annoyance or unrest.' "

—*—

And since the case in question was one which involved street riots, rock hurling, personal assaults and stench bombs, it would seem that these jurists classified such violence as merely an inconvenience and an annoyance.

"The other four justices took the view that it is more than an inconvenience and a nuisance to find yourself flat on your puss with the mob trampling over your prostrate body. Justice Jackson pulled the rug from under the five justices by saying that if the highest court doesn't temper its doctrinaire baloney with a little horse sense it will convert the bill of rights into a national suicide pact. He added that the majority opinion kicked the police in the teeth and fulfilled the most extravagent hopes of those groups which want to paralyze and discredit authority. He spoke my language. I don't like the idea of rabble rousing being played deuces wild, with all rules of fair play suspended and hatefulness the biggest pipe in the organ," Elmer concluded.

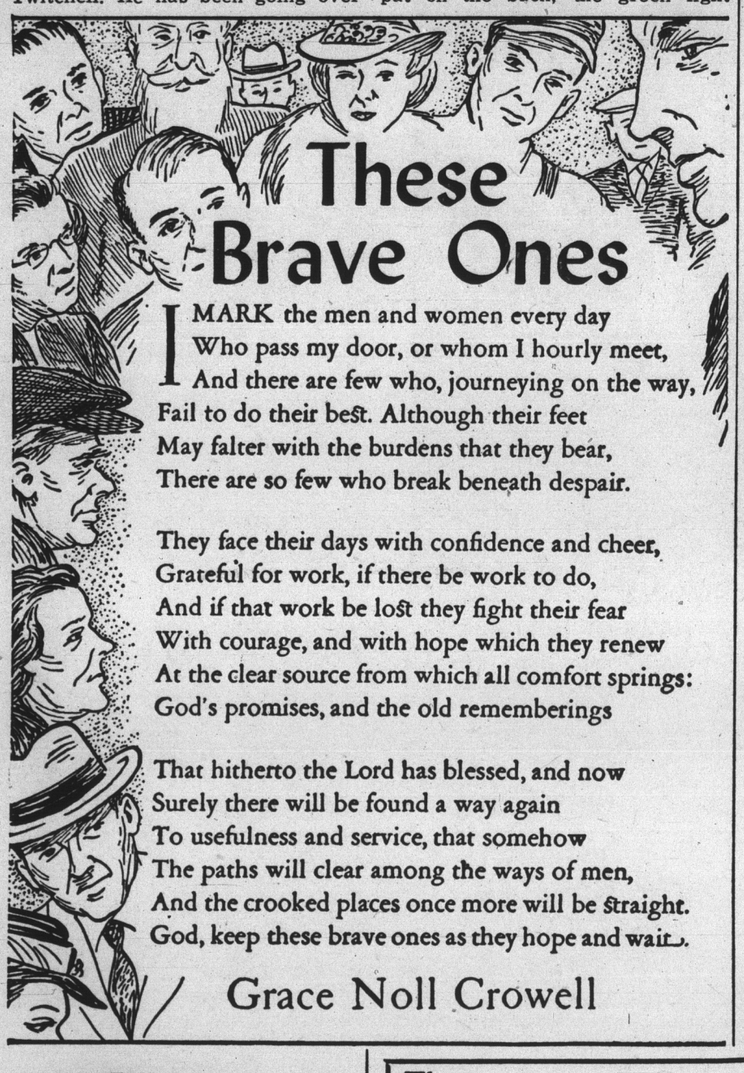
The $20,000 bail put up for Gerhart Eisler has been forfeited. It was put up by friends of the alleged No. 1 Communist agent in America in good faith for his appearance, but to Mr. Eisler it is unimportant, as all money is capitalistic and all bail systems decadent.



These Brave Ones

I MARK the men and women every day
Who pass my door, or whom I hourly meet,
And there are few who, journeying on the way,
Fail to do their best. Although their feet
May falter with the burdens that they bear,
There are so few who break beneath despair.

They face their days with confidence and cheer,
Grateful for work, if there be work to do,
And if that work be lost they fight their fear
With courage, and with hope which they renew
At the clear source from which all comfort springs:
God's promises, and the old rememberings

That hitherto the Lord has blessed, and now
Surely there will be found a way again
To usefulness and service, that somehow
The paths will clear among the ways of men,
And the crooked places once more will be straight.
God, keep these brave ones as they hope and wait.

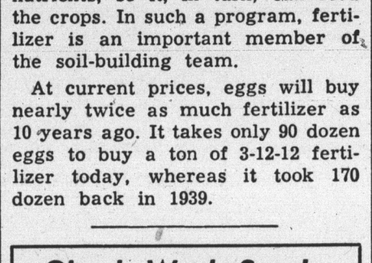
Good Clean Pasture Helps Poultry Men

Home Grown Feeds Cut Operating Cost

Good clean pasture and plenty of home grown feeds for your pullet crop pays dividends in more eggs, lower production costs and bigger poultry profits. The use of range shelters, range feeders and barrel waterers makes such a program easily possible.

Missouri university tests show that pullets on well-fertilized alfalfa pasture consumed 17 per cent less feed than birds on bare range. The pasture-fed pullets needed less feed for each pound of gain. Birds on clean pasture were healthier and more energetic. Mortality rate was lower and there were fewer culls. Out of 100 pullets at four weeks of age, 94 of the alfalfa-ranged birds later went into the laying house, compared to 70 of those raised on bare ground. Purdue university tests showed that ladino clover with corn and small grains provided a complete ration for laying flocks.



Getting good pasture and a cheap and plentiful supply of grain is a matter of putting farm soil in shape to produce bigger yields per acre. For this you need a rotation in which deep-rooted legumes and grasses are keystone. You need to build up the organic matter supply via plowed-under legumes, crop residues and manure. You need to feed the soil a good ration of plant nutrients, so it, in turn, can feed the crops. In such a program, fertilizer is an important member of the soil-building team.

At current prices, eggs will buy nearly twice as much fertilizer as 10 years ago. It takes only 90 dozen eggs to buy a ton of 3-12-12 fertilizer today, whereas it took 170 dozen back in 1939.

Check Work Stock

Owners of the 55,000 horses and mules on Maryland farms have been urged to "check intake valves, remove carbon from the cylinders, and adjust the carburetor."

Those terms aren't as mixed as one might think. Joseph M. Vial, extension animal husbandman, explained that a horse's mouth and teeth may be compared to intake valves on a tractor. The teeth need to be floated (just as the intake valve needs to be properly seated) if they are to meet evenly and let the horse chew his feed properly.

Just as tractors are troubled with carbon in the cylinders, horses may have trouble with internal parasites. These may be removed by any competent veterinarian and the horse will be a better worker during the coming summer.

The carburetor on the tractor adjusts fuel supply to the work load. For horses, this is accomplished by getting them in proper condition before the heavy work load comes. Vial recommends this be done by "feeding the horse a handful of oil meal with his grain at this time of year to keep him in good condition and by giving him as many jobs to do as possible; such as spreading manure or hauling logs."

Other recommendations include: "Keep water in his cooling system, keep his tires in good condition by having him properly shod and see that his harness fits."

Farm Record Keepers Told of "Short Cut"

"It's easier to keep up than to catch up," advises Clara Leopold, extension home management specialist at the University of Nebraska, to the home and farm account record keeper. Another hint, she says, is to keep a pencil attached to the account records.

According to Mrs. Leopold, a certain time each day should be set aside to jot down the daily transactions.

MacDonald Carey is in the market for a good comedy. Currently playing a villain for the third time in succession in "Copper Canyon," after doing the same in "Streets of Laredo" and "Bride of Vengeance," he'd like a change.

Gloria Swanson, starring in Paramount's "Sunset Boulevard" after a long absence from the screen, turned down a contract for $18,000 a week in 1926 to organize her own company; hence, that long absence from pictures. She'll never make a bigger mistake. But she has not lost her looks or her figure—even looked wonderful on television!

Robert Sterling feels better now that the feud between him and Sunbeam is over. It began with the start of "Roughshod"; the horse realized that this was Sterling's first riding assignment—nipped Sterling whenever he turned his back, tried to throw him at unexpected moments. Sterling figured even a horse had his price, won Sunbeam with plenty of sugar.

The Fiction Corner

A PRINCE CAN LAUGH

By Richard H. Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction

A WEEK after I established residence in Seabrook, Ray Quimper, my next door neighbor took time off to drive me around the town and show me the points of interest. Toward evening he stopped his car before a driveway that led up to a huge brick house on top of Drybridge Hill. It was the only brick building in town and could be seen for miles around. I had wondered about it since the day of my arrival.

"The home of Prince Alexander Moisevich Deborin," he explained.

I looked at him curiously, sensing that this was a proud moment for Ray. He had saved the brick house until last, like a child relishing the last morsel.

"Of course," Ray explained further "he has a city home too. But the fact is he spends the greater part of his time out here. He craves solitude."

"Are you sure? I mean, wouldn't it be fitting to let the man know you're glad to have him as a citizen?"

"We've tended to that," Ray said importantly. "Three days after his arrival a committee made up of leading citizens waited on the prince and extended him a formal welcome." He regarded me sagely. "We're smart enough not to antagonize the man by pestering him to death."

On the day of which I write I was removing the storm windows from my house, for spring was near and the day was bright and warm. The prince came strolling along my street and stopped, oddly enough, at the end of my drive to watch. I perceived him from the corner of my eye, though gave no indication that I had seen. After a moment or two, much to my satisfaction, he turned in at the drive and came slowly toward me. At this precise moment the stepladder on which I was standing tilted precariously and the window I was removing threatened to tumble to the ground.

I uttered a cry of alarm, turned, perceived the prince as if for the first time, and shouted to him for aid. Involuntarily, he leaped forward and steadied the ladder until I had descended.

"Phew!" I grinned. "That was a close call."

"It was indeed," he replied.

"Would you mind holding the ladder for me on this window over here?" He seemed a little surprised, but agreed to lend his assistance. He proved as good a helper as I could have asked for. Three windows I removed while he steadied the ladder and helped me lower them to the ground. We chatted amiably about the weather. PRESENTLY the task was done and I turned to him, grinning. "Thanks a lot. I don't know how I would have managed without you."

"Really?" He seemed to appreciate my compliment. "Frankly, I've enjoyed it, not only the work, but our little visit." He hesitated. "You are new in town, aren't you?"

"Comparatively," I said. "It's a mightly nice town. Folks are all like yourself. Ready and willing to lend a hand when help is needed."

I smiled happily. "The fact that I know your name, Prince Alexander, proves a little theory of my own."

He stared in astonishment. "You know who I am? You knew when you asked me to help remove the windows?"

I nodded. "Your philosophy and mine have a good deal in common, Prince. And that is, that you're no different from the rest of us. I'd even venture to say that you are quite unhappy living up there in your castle so far removed from everybody. To prove that I am right, I'm going to ask you a question. Tomorrow I'm going fishing. How would you like to come along?"

"I'd like to very much," he said. "But we must keep it a secret from the rest of the people. It would be a pity to destroy their illusion."

I agreed, winking at him knowingly, and the prince and I then and there shared a hearty laugh.

Two Big Questions

BEFORE Secretary of State Acheson left for Paris, he stopped by Capitol Hill for some last-minute parting advice, which will shed light on some of the policies the United States will follow at the big four conference.

Two big questions came up during the hour-long, closed-door conference;

1. How far should we go in conciliating Russia?

2. Where should we draw the line on German recovery?

Senator Vandenberg of Michigan cautioned the secretary of state against taking too stern a stand with the Russians. He agreed we mustn't give ground or show signs of appeasement, but at the same time he urged keeping an open mind to any honest peace overtures. His attitude was that we shouldn't "burn the last bridge."

Senator Thomas of Utah was blunt and to the point about rebuilding Germany. "Is there any feeling anywhere," he asked, "that we should rearm Germany as a buffer against Russia?"

Acheson assured not, but Thomas kept hammering this point home. He warned that Germany, when she gets her strength back, might side with Russia; that Germany has closer ties to the East than the West; that the Germans even started rebuilding their army and navy across the Russian border after World War I. Thousands of Germans actually worked inside Russia until Hitler bit the hand that was helping him, Thomas recalled.

To Watch Germans

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts argued that we should strengthen Germany's economy without building up her warmaking capacity. To prevent a resurrection of German military power, he demanded that Acheson insist upon a close watch on Germany's forces and factories.

The secretary promised this would be done. He added that Russia would have nothing to say about the Ruhr, since she got nothing from the Ruhr in peacetime.

"What do you mean by Russia?" Senator Thomas broke in. "If you mean the satellite states, then Russia has all the interest in the world in the Ruhr."

Central European countries, now behind the iron curtain, he added, always did a big business with the Ruhr, which would give Russia a voice in deciding the fate of the Ruhr.

Acheson and Vandenberg also engaged in a brief dispute over whether the right-of-way to Berlin definitely had been spelled out in the Potsdam agreement. Vandenberg argued that it hadn't been put in "contractual form," and urged the secretary of state to see that our right-of-way to Berlin was made clear at Paris.

FDR, Jr., "On Way"

No one fought the election of Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., harder than Vito Marcantonio, sole American Labor representative in congress. The bouncing, brilliant legislator from Manhattan stumped the 20th district, trying to defeat the namesake of the late FDR.

But after it was all over and the votes showed young Roosevelt to be the overwhelming victor, Congressman Marcantonio met Congressman Chet Holifield of California on the floor of the House. Quote he: "You want to get aboard with Franklin Roosevelt. He's really going places."

Note—Young Roosevelt's victory in New York will be a big psychological boost to his elder brother in California where Jimmie plans to run for governor.

CIO Housecleaning

CIO President Philip Murray's attack on Communists and fellow travelers last week was even tougher than appeared in the papers.

It was so devastating that the Communist party-liners were thrown into complete confusion and, at one point, Ben Gold, president of the left-wing Fur Workers union, became so disgusted with his fellow leftists he went out for a round of drinks. Returning, Gold stood up and denounced Harry Bridges, shouting:

"I know the party line just as well as you do."

RFC Probe

Arkansas' hard-working Sen. William Fulbright, chairman of a banking and currency subcommittee, will make a sweeping probe of certain officials of the reconstruction finance corporation who were given plush jobs with business firms shortly after these firms got loans from the RFC.

Fulbright is interested chiefly in John Hagerty, former head of the Boston RFC office, who got a $30,000-a-year job with the Waltham watch company.

REMEMBER WHEN? . . . Nostalgia reigned more than somewhat at the return of the Palace theater to vaudeville. Here comedian Milton Berle (left), radio and video star, was on hand to welcome back two of the oldtimers who "played the Palace" when that engagement was considered the pinnacle of success. Dancer Pat Rooney (right) who played the Palace in the old days, joins Berle in welcoming 77-year old Bessie Wynn who once played at the Palace.

VISITING PRESIDENT WELCOMED AT CATHEDRAL . . . President Eurico Gaspar Dutra of Brazil is greeted at St. Patrick's cathedral in New York by Francis Cardinal Spellman. The head of the Brazilian government, returning a visit made by President Truman to the South American republic, attended mass at St. Patrick's as one of his first official acts in the big city.

BOY TRAPPED IN CAVE-IN . . . Six-year old Raymond Wolf had a close call when he fell into an air vent leading into a cave his playmates had dug. The vent caved in on the lad, covering him up to his neck and trapping him for an hour before he was discovered by a neighbor, Jack Dolce.

EASY DOES IT! . . . Helen S. Kaman, wife of the designer of the Kaman K-190 helicopter, supports the craft with one hand during a demonstration on the mall near the national Capitol. Aboard the K-190, the world's first commercial twin-rotor helicopter, were William R. Murray, chief test pilot; Aubrey C. Witt, secretary to a congressman, and George Phillip, attache of the U.S. foreign service. Helicopter development is still within the experimental stage.

Aid for the Women

A method designed to increase the attractiveness of woman's hair, by causing it to wave and also to curl and thus reflect light in greater degree is covered by a patent issued to a New York woman, according to National Patent council. An inexpensive wave curler of non-metallic materials is used in the process; the inventor suggests the pinna, or leaflets of the pinnated date-palm leaf. The patent reveals a method of treating and preserving the pinna and describes each step to be used in producing the proper waves and curls.

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

HARLEY M. LEETE

We did not get to know Mr. Leete very well, being only acquainted with him the last four months of his life, but we were disheartened that only a handful of persons rendered him last respects at his funeral Saturday.

We have spent all of our short lifetime in the newspaper business and realize it is a profession that trends to incur intentional and unintentional enmities. Only the mugwump newspaperman is free of non-friendly acquaintances and he dies a hypocrite and a pale and bloodless personality.

Mr. Leete was a graduate of the University of California at the age of 26 at the turn of the century, a milestone in achievement itself, as it meant he must have worked his way through school. He had ability or he could never have held night editor jobs on metropolitan papers.

Mr. Leete had courage to enter the weekly newspaper publishing business at an age when most men are ready to retire. Mr. Leete had fortitude to bear the more than his share of ill health that came his way and his family's way.

We have lived all our adult life in the newspaper business in small communities and it was always the practice of the community to give even the Judy O'Gradys a well attended interment.

A FAR-REACHING DECISION

Lawyers throughout California are probably breathing much easier this week following a dismissal of legal malpractice suit by Superior Judge James Snell, sitting in El Dorado superior court last week.

A decision in favor of the plaintiff would no doubt have opened a floodgate of malpractice suits against attorneys that would make the countless damage suits look like bush league stuff.

Veterans' News

Veterans administration officials estimate four out of five veterans' widows who are suddenly faced with the necessity of filing claims for pensions find themselves unable to lay hands immediately upon copies of public records necessary to establish the claims.

One of the most important steps a married veteran or serviceman can take to protect his wife and children in case of his death is to place on file a certified copy of the public record of marriage, together with complete certified records of any previous marriages of himself and wife. Copies of birth certificates of any children should also be obtained.

Many a tragic delay in settling the pension claim of a veterans' widow has resulted because the widow or her dead husband has been married previously and adequate proof of the dissolution of that marriage was produced only after a long and painful search.

Before the widow's claim can be settled, the VA must trace down the facts of that previous marriage to make sure it was dissolved and the widow was legally the veteran's wife at the time of his death. This may mean searching the records in each county in which the veteran lived during his first marriage.

Veterans and servicemen owe it to their loved ones to insure that necessary records are readily available in case of death.

Question: What supporting evidence must be furnished by a widow or child in order to claim death pension?

Answer: Proof of legal relationship of widow (marriage and dissolution of prior marirages of both spouses) and proof of legal relationship of child or acknowledgement of child by veteran.

Question: May death pension be paid to a widow who has remarried?

Answer: No. She loses all status as a widow of her previous husband upon remarriage.

Question: Why is it necessary to submit proof of legal relationship when this evidence was on my husband's military service records?

Answer: The statement on military records is not considered sufficient evidence for a court of law. No investigation is made by the military of legality of the marriage or legal dissolution of previous marriages, either of yourself or your husband. These facts must be established by authenticated copies of public records.

Question: What veterans are entitled to receive automobiles from the government

Answer: Veterans who have suffered the loss, or loss of use, of one or both legs as the result of a disability incurred in active service during World War II are entitled to automobiles.

Forest Service Book Available From GPO

"Forests and National Prosperty, a Reappraisal of the Forest Situation in the United States," has just been released by the United States department of agriculture.

The brochure is the result of two years of study by forty forestry experts and may be secured from the U. S. government printing office at Washington, D. C. for 40 cents.

In a foreword to the report, Lyle F. Watts, chief of the forest service, points out that saw timber cut, plus losses from natural causes, exceeds annual growth by fifty per cent, yet indications are that the needs of the nation for saw timber products are considerably greater than the present cut, with new uses for wood constantly being discovered.

"Forests contribute to the welfare of the nation in many ways," Watts points out. "They are invaluable in the protection of watersheds, they afford recreation and sport for people in all walks of life. They are the habitat of many forms of wild life and provide range forage for millions of livestock."

Declaring the nation has enough forest land—624 mililon acres in continental United States—Watts states "the challenge" is to grow more timber. Some means for improving the nation's timber production are outlined in the report, which is amply illustrated with charts and tables.

Just Wonderin'

I Wonder if the educated man
Is made by formal methods of the schools,
Or is it destiny that chisels his I.Q.
With keen foresight and extra special tools?
Self discipline I'm sure must play a part,
When one is traveling toward his goal,
Until he reaches it and stands erect,
Mature of mind and captain of his soul.

There are so many definitions of education, that all one has to do, is to look them over, take his choice and go his way; but, when he comes to the point of deciding when a man is educated and when he is not, one finds himself in a state of cumulative disorder.

Some there are who consider their college diplomas as credentials. "Now," says the young graduate, as he leaves his Alma Mater and steps forth into the world of reality, "now, I am an educated man." But is he? He might have taken the word, "Commencement" at its face value, for he has just begun the great task of self education; he stands upon the threshold of learning and all the far away places of the mind, are calling to him at one and the same time.

From grammar school, from high school and from college, he has received a few tools, a few keys and a few road maps, which if wisely used, will facilitate his search for that which will give to him the right to think and speak of himself as, "an educated man."

How may an educated man be distinguished from who can lay no claim to the title? Certainly not by the number of his diplomas; he may have graduated from college with high honors and he may have acquired as many degrees as—President Truman and yet have no right to be called, "a man of erudition." Education is not of the mind alone, it is also of the heart and the spirit. A truly worth while education brings the mind and spirit into accord with the finest and loftiest ideals of his own and other races. It leads one to rightly evaluate, appreciate and honor the wise laws and regulations of this government—it teaches him loyalty to himself, the state and humanity. The man of education realizes his own limitations and for that reason is a seeker of knowledge. He desires to know all that he is capable of learning about the world in which he lives and about the creatures who are his fellow voyagers across its perilous wilds; his mind explores the universe and no scrap of evidence is too small for his careful consideration. He comes in time to know the aspirations of humanity and still he moves forward seeking new worlds of wisdom to conquer.

Truly this subject of education is a complex one and in the line of educated and uneducated men and women, there are variants enough to delight the soul of a Darwin. If we ponder too intently and too long, we may get all bent over like Rodin's Thinker, so, let's take it easy. There are many educational problems before the world of today and if each one of us will but do a bit of thinking they may be speedily resolved.

If one lacks the formal training of the schools, let him not be discouraged; self education, self discipline and the cultivation of understanding, sympathy and tolerance are essentials which are within the reach of all. Let us one and all bend to the tasks of lifetime learning, remembering that, "he who ruleth his own spirit is greater than he who taketh a city."

Gold Digger's Trail

Charles Scott Haley

I remember one time that my little redheaded second in command came into my quarters after taking a large snickersnee from the worst Brownsville in the outfit, who was about six foot three, while Ham was only about five foot five. I asked him how he did it. He replied, "Captain, I just gave him a nasty look," and he rolled into bed.

Some years after I was out of the army, I received a very touching letter from a colored man who was pastor of a church in Baltimore. He requested that I send my picture to him, so he could show it to members of his congregation, as he had told them about me many times. Highly flattered, I turned to my old rosters, and found the name. I recognized it then as the name of a six foot colored boy from whom I had taken a huge knife when I came in late one evening, and found him chasing a little brown boy from Mississippi by the name of Cupid Bowens, and drunkenly threatening to cut his liver out.

I took the knife away from him, placed him under arrest and threw him into the brig. Next morning when he had sobered up and was brought into my orderly room, thoroughly repentant, I showed him the knife and told him that the next time anything like it happened, I was going to put him under six feet of rock and leave him there. That was the only personal contact I ever had with him, but it seemed to have done the work.

But not all the disturbances were from within. We were drawing our rock from the grounds of a Frenchman locally called "Count Robert". We were paying him a good price for the rock, and leaving quite a hole in an inconspicuous part of his estate. But one day, I found a request to come over to dine with him at the Chateau. Nothing loath to secure a diversion from tinned salmon and beans, I accepted; and had a very pleasant evening. My French at that time was quite fluent, and the Count and his women were very attentive hosts, and the wines were of the best. We were soon on friendly terms ,and I accepted an invitation to tea the following week. Young ladies with soulful eyes attended my wants and laughed with great courtesy at my brilliant French repartee. A good time appeared to be had by all.

Two days later, however, came the payoff. The Count called to see me at my office, and wished to speak to me privately. He assured me that while he was being paid for his rock, nevertheless we were leaving an unsightly hole on his estate, and he should be indemnified. Also, he thought that as the ground excavated covered two hectares, that the great and rich U. S. Government should in all fairness buy the two hectares, at a price which was staggering. In conclusion, he wished to know if I could keep the matter quiet—just between ourselves—and he was a man who always remembered his friends.

In other words, he wished me to connive at a highjacking scheme which would force our government to pay for his rock three times over. I sat back in my chair and thought a minute. Then I leaned forward and said, "Indeed, your suggestion sounds highly feasible."

His face lighted up, and he smiled ingratiatingly.

"But," I said, "of course first I must lay the whole proposal before the French Genie." Immediately a cloud of gloom came over his face, and he arose. Very quickly, he walked to the door, and remarked, "Please monsieur, let matters stay as they are. Consider that my request was unspoken." And he walked stiffly out.

The French Genie was our liason body, organized expressly to prevent gouging of our government by the French corps of Engineers. Penalties were strict.

But I received no more invitations to the castle.

At Mesves-sur-Loire, to which I was occasionally called as consultant by Major Lansley, we found another, and very pleasant situation. The chateau on whose grounds the hospital was being built, belonged to La Comtesse de Chivray. She was a very attractive girl of twenty-five or so, whose grandmother had been an American heiress, and she evidently was quite American in her traditions. Many of our officers used to spend spare time at the chateau, although for a time she was engaged to a French aviator. He dropped out of the running after a while, and the Countess dropped into the habit of inviting a few of us over for Saturday night dinner.

The chateau was an ancient one formerly belonging to the great Comte de Nevers, and had many marvelous tapestries, paintings and carvings. Also one of the best collections of medieval armor that I have ever seen. But the most attractive room to use was the library, a cozy room with comfortable Grand Rapids chairs, lined with books of distinction. One or two of these on being removed, proved to be merely a set of covers between which was a flat decanter of brandy of old vintage; and these books became very popular. Many a pleasant evening I have enjoyed around this hospitable fireplace. To many of our officers it seemed a haven of rest; and finally a certain captain of the 529th decided to enter the lists against the declining French aviator. To my great delight, he met with success, and I received an invitation to their wedding a year or so after the armistice.

As winter set in, time passed very quickly. When the day of the final armistice came, all Nevers went wild, as did every other part of France. Workmen laid down their tools, with the cry of "Finila Guerre", and proceeded to get properly liquored for the occasion.

Roses Featured In Garden Club Meeting June 9

The regular monthly meeting of the Nevada City Garden club was held at the home of Mrs. A. W. Hoge with Mrs. Rose Sofge, Mrs. Pearl Strach and Mrs. Frances Burton as co-hostesses.

The feature of this meeting was a flower show. The large porch was a bower of lovely plants and blooms, all artistically arranged, everything from one perfect magnolia bloom to miniature roses arranged in a thimble.

The emphasis had been placed on roses, some identified and some fine old roses whose identity has been lost through the years. These roses tied in with an informative and interesting talk on roses given by Mrs. Burton, program chairman.

Mrs. Burton referred several times to bulletin No. 148, "Rose Culture in California," by the noted horticulturist, H. M. Butterfield. This bulletin is free from the California agricultural extension service, Memorial building, Grass Valley. William Brooks, farm advisor, will be glad to give any one interested a copy. It should be in the reference library of every grower of roses.

The awards were given Mrs. Alice Hiscox for a fine varied display, Mrs. L. Pollard an unusual cactus in full bloom, Mrs. Harriett Farmer and Mrs. Pearl Strach for their old fashioned mixed bouquets.

The club is grateful to the following ladies, neighbors of garden club members, who gave roses from their gardens. Mrs. Annie Christensen, Mrs. Gordon Smith, Mrs. Otto Schiffner, Mrs. Elsie Osborne, Mrs. Cecilie Christensen and Mrs. Ben Hall.

Next meeting of the club will be held Thursday, July 1 at the home of Mrs. R. E. Harris.

Mrs. Quinn impersonated Walter Winchell in announcing his birth in Sattley on June 2, 1869. She also brought down the house with announcements of Turner's election as county superintendent of schools in 1899, his marriage to Miss Helen Wright Feb. 17, 1904; and in the voice of Gabriel Heater brought the good news of his election as county clerk in 1930.

Others on the program were Joan Sinnott, Dorothy Hodge, Eugene C. Stowe.

Pioneer Recipes Are Being Sought by the California State Fair

Those delicious recipes of a golden era, which great grandma brought around the Horn or across the plains, are being sought for the California state, Sept. 1 through 11, and many will win cash awards.

As a new feature of the fair, and in keeping with California's observance of the centennial of the gold rush, a California institute of cooking, which will feature recipes of the pioneers, has been arranged in the former education building.

In a modern kitchen, culinary experts will prepare prize recipes which have been handed down from generation to generation. All California residents are invited to submit these recipes, such perhaps, as syllabub, a mixture of wine or cider and milk, but prepared in many difference ways.

These recipes of an era when cooking was done on a crude stove or in iron or copper kettles over open fireplaces, may be for soups, meats, poultry, vegetables, breads, and desserts. Each must be accompanied by a short historical sketch on how the recipe originated and its value.

Three prizes are being offered for winning recipes in each of the classes, $50 for first, $40 for second, and $30 for third. Entries will be judged with some consideration being given for the historical background.

MANY AWARDS AT CUB PACK LAST MEETING OF SPRING SEASON

Cub Pack 23 held its last meeting until fall Thursday night at Pioneer park.

It was a pot luck supper with a large attendance of Cubs, parents and friends.

Cubmaster Onda Smith opened the meeting leading the salute to the flag, and presented the awards as follows:

One year service star—Cliff Pooler, Ronnie Williams, Jim Shock, Ted Ness and Peter Hill.

Bobcat badge—Jimmy Jackson, George Setzer, Jerry Pursell, Charles Giani, Jimmy Williams, Sherman Hanley, Billy Kolstead, David Estes, and Edgar Stahlschmidt.

Bear awards—Bobby Wicks and Grim Smith.

Wolf patch—Warren Scribner.

Lion badge and patch was presented to Don Lee who has completed three successful years of Cubbing.

Gold arrows—Bobby Wicks, Don Lee and Fred Relaford.

Silver arrow—Jim Shock.

Bobby Fisher was elected Denner of his den. Harold Hummelt was elected assistant Denner of his den, and Don Smith was elected Keeper of the Buckskin of his den.

Special awards were announced as follows:

Achievements—Den 5 with 38.

Inspection—Dens 2 and 5 were 100 per cent; attendance, Dens 2 and 5 tied; Keeper of the Buckskin, Don Smith of Den 2; best skit, Den 4; Handicraft, den 4.

After the presentation of awards Cubmaster Smith introduced Ray Ewan, scout executive of Tahoe council from Auburn, who gave an interesting talk on scouting. He said that helping Nevada City Pack 23 is part of his job as he helps units in three counties. Following a demand on the part of younger boys to get into cubbing, the age limit has been reduced to eight allowing boys at the age of eleven to become scouts. He said it would be a new change over but working with local units they should be strengthened enough by fall to enter the scouting program.

He announced a district organization meeting to be held very soon presided over by vice president of the Tahoe council, Guerdon Ellis, to set up a program to meet the demands of scouting.

He stressed the fact that parents should give encouragement so that smaller boys can be taken care of as scouting faces a tremendous challenge today and in the days ahead. Cubbing is preparation for scouting, he said.

He congratulated Cubmaster Smith for all his fine work and the time he has given and congratulated the parents who showed an interest by coming out to the pack meeting.

The meeting closed wth the respective dens making their Living Circle.

SNELL DISMISSES CASE OF LEGAL MALPRACTICE IN EL DORADO COUNTY

Superior Judge James Snell, presiding in El Dorado superior court last week dismissed a suit of malpractice against Henry S. Lyon, district attorney of El Dorado county. Suit had been brought by George Weston against Lyon charging inadequate presentation in a quiet title action filed in 1942.

Weston contended he had been dispossessed of property valued at $10,000 in the quiet title action and asked that amount as damages.

George Lewis, attorney for Weston, stated the suit was based on the allegation Lyon as attorney for Weston had neglected to plead adverse possession in his defense against the quiet title action.

Evidence and exhibits from the quiet title action showed Lyon had introduced such pleading.

Lewis then reported he found himself without grounds to proceed, and upon motion by the defense for dismissal, Snell granted same.

NEVADA COUNTY BOND CAMPAIGN QUOTA $49,000

Nevada county's quota for America's Opportunity Bond Drive, continuing through this month, has been set at $49,000, according to an announcement by C. R. Clinch, chairman of Nevada county drive.

Clinch, in urging all residents of the county, to join in this peacetime financing campaign said:

"Some of us may wish that scientists had not unleashed the terrific power of atomic energy, but atomic energy is here to stay. we'll have to learn to use ti sensibly.

"Most of us wish the national debt were not so big, but it is very big, and it's going to with us a long time. We've got to learn how to deal with it sensibly, too.

"Aside from the incidental bills we may currently owe the grocer, the milk man, the gas company and the hardware store, everyone of us 147 million Americans is in debt some $1,714 to the federal government. Or we would be, if the national debt of some $253 billion were to be divided equally among every man, woman and child in the country.

"It is not so divided. Some of us hold several thousand dollars worth of the government securities representing that debt. Some of us hold only a few hundred dollars in savings bonds; others no government bonds at all.

"But, generally speaking, everyone of us is taxed in one way or another to pay the interest on the national debt and to retire the principal. It is economically and otherwise beneficial debt widely spread—in the hands of a large number of bondholders so that as many people as possible will share in the interest payments on the debt and not just be taxed to pay principal and interest to others.

"Holding a share of the national debt, through investment in savings bonds, is beneficial to individuals as well as to the country at large. The bondholder becomes a creditor of the government. He acquires an increased sense of personal dignity, a closer tie with national affairs, a feeling that the national welfare is his welfare. And as a partner of Uncle Sam, the bondholder adds to his own financial security through investment in the safest bonds on earth.

"The sale of savings bonds to as large a number of people as possible is a most important object of the treasury's debt-management program.

"It is cheering to note that individual holdings of government bonds have been on the increase over the past few years. Just before the outbreak of the past war, individuals (as distinct from trusts or institutions) held about $11 billion, or 21 per cent of the then national debt of $55 billion. At the present time, individuals hold $68 billion, or 27 per cent of the debt of $253 billion (these figures cover all government securities, saving bonds and others).

"Much of this healthy shift to wide-spread individual holding of government securities has been brought about by the continued and energetic promotion of savings bonds since the close of the war. Individual holdings of savings bonds in December 1945 were about $43 billion. By February, 1949, these individual holdings had increased to $47.5 billion, including $32.5 billion in series E, the type most widely bought by moderate investors.

"Savings bonds investors do two important things at the same time: They build up their own savings for security and the future betterment of themselves and their families and they help keep the economy of the whole country on an even keel.

"The savings bonds investor is an investor in the American way of life. He is upholding the dignity of the individual. He is upholding our free enterprise system. So it is up to all of us to take part in the savings bonds program for our own good, for our family and our community, and the financial soundness of the United States.

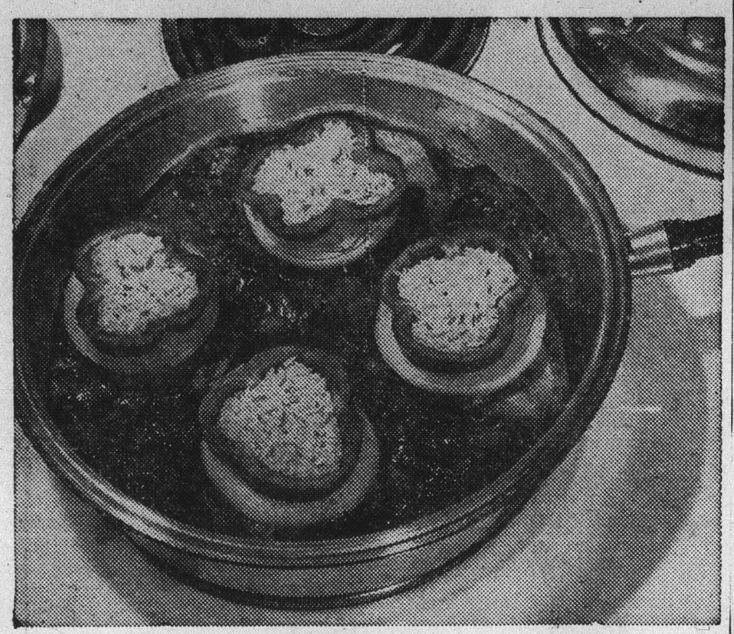
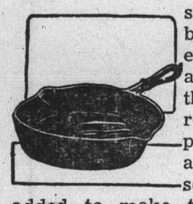
HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers



Cook a Savory Main Dish in a Skillet
(See Recipes Below)

Skillet Dinners

WHEN YOU WANT to cook a really appetizing dinner for your family, do it in a skillet. Veal chops, pork chops, curries and chicken, all can be cooked to mouth-watering tenderness in a skillet after browning, by covering the skillet and turning down the heat. Mushrooms, green peppers, onions and all sorts of other seasoning can be added to make the food savory. Pork chops are a real favorite, especially if they are prepared in this manner with tomatoes, green pepper, celery and rice.



Pork Chop Skillet Meal
(Serves 4)

- 4 tablespoons fat
- 4 pork chops, 1" thick
- 4 slices Bermuda onion, ¼" thick
- 3 cups canned tomatoes
- 4 rings green pepper, ¼" thick
- 4 tablespoons uncooked rice
- 1 cup celery diced

Heat four tablespoons of fat in skillet on high heat. Turn switch to medium and brown pork chops until well browned on both sides, approximately 15 minutes. Place a slice of onion and one pepper ring on each chop. Place one tablespoon of rice in each ring. Pour tomatoes around meat and add celery. Place cover on skillet. When steaming (about eight minutes), switch to simmer and allow to cook for one hour.

Skillet Chicken
(Serves 3-4)

- 2 cups cooked chicken
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 3 cups chicken stock or water
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Dash of pepper
- 2 bay leaves
- 1 sprig thyme
- 2 small sprigs parsley
- 8 small onions
- ½ pound mushrooms
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Melt butter in a saucepan. Stir in flour. Add stock slowly, stirring constantly, until sauce is thickened.

Then add bay leaves, thyme and sprigs of parsley which have been tied together. Add salt, pepper, onions and mushrooms which have been cleaned and stemmed. Simmer on low heat for 45 minutes. Add the chicken which may be in large pieces, if desired. Heat chicken, but do not allow mixture to boil. Remove bay leaves, thyme and parsley which were tied together. Serve very hot, over biscuits or cooked rice, sprinkled with chopped parsley.

Skillet Veal Chops
(Serves 4)

- 6 loin veal chops
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 5 tablespoons fat
- 1 cup sliced onions
- 1 cup canned tomatoes
- ½ cup hot water
- 1 bay leaf
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- ½ cup cold water

Dredge the chops in flour which has been mixed with salt and pepper. Saute onions in two tablespoons of fat until brown. Place chops on top of onions, and add tomatoes, water and bay leaf. Cover and simmer on top of range for 45 to 60 minutes until tender. Remove chops to a hot platter. Makes a smooth paste of cornstarch and cold water and add to liquid in skillet. Stir and cook until thickened, then pour over chops.

Veal in Sour Cream
(Serves 4)

- 2 pounds boned veal shoulder, cut in 1" cubes
- 2 ounces salt pork, cut fine
- ½ cup minced onion
- ½ clove garlic, minced fine, if desired
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon paprika
- 1½ cups boiling water
- ¾ cup soured cream
- 2 tablespoons flour
- ¼ cup cold water

Saute salt pork, onion, garlic and veal until meat is browned well on all sides. Add seasonings and water. Cook, covered over low heat until veal is tender, about one hour. Remove veal to hot platter and keep warm. Add sour cream to pan drippings. Stir flour and water together until smooth and add to ingredients in saucepan.

Curried Lamb
(Serves 4)

- 1 cup uncooked rice
- ¾ cup sliced onions
- ¾ cup diced celery
- 2 tablespoons fat
- 1½ cups cubed, cooked lamb
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- 2 cups lamb stock or gravy
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons flour
- ¼ cup cold water

Cook rice until tender and keep hot. In the meantime, saute onions, celery in fat in a skillet until lightly browned. Add lamb, curry powder, stock and salt. Cover and simmer 30 minutes. If desired, thicken liquid in pan with flour blended with cold water. Serve over rice.

Lamb Kidney Saute
(Serves 4)

- 8 lamb kidneys, split
- 2 tablespoons fat
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- ½ cup beef stock
- ¼ cup canned tomato juice
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
- 4 slices toast

Saute cleaned kidneys in fat in a skillet for 15 to 20 minutes or until tender, turning frequently. Reduce heat and sprinkle flour over kidneys. Blend flour with fat while turning. Add parsley, stock, tomato juice, salt and sauce. Cook over low heat until sauce is thickened. Serve on toast.

LYNN SAYS:
Try These Seasonings For Vegetables

Bake carrots if you want to try something new and different. Sprinkle small scraped carrots with ⅓ cup of butter which is creamed with ½ cup sugar, one teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon cinnamon and ⅓ cup of boiling water.

Garden-fresh green beans, slivered and buttered, will be even more tasty if you add some chopped mint leaves to them just before finishing the cooking.

Cooked, chopped spinach takes on glamor if you place it in a casserole, top with cheese sauce and mushroom caps. Place in oven long enough to heat through.

When creaming green beans, add a few dashes of onion juice to the white sauce while you make it. This adds zip to the mild tasting vegetable.

Have you some dabs of leftover vegetables? Combine them in cheese sauce and stuff hollowed-out cooked onions with the mixture. Bake until onions are tender.

Duplication of No. 20 Oil

It is not possible to duplicate No. 20 oil by mixing kerosene with No. 30 oil. Kerosene generally contains components that evaporate much more quickly than those used in lubricating oils. Some automobile makers recommend adding kerosene to lubricating oils for use at extremely low temperatures. In such a case, the manufacturers' directions should be followed.

Yeasts for Beasts

First U. S. plant to utilize waste from pulpwood for the production of yeast has recently commenced operations in Wisconsin. Results from this experimental product may be important to the animal feed industry, and to suppliers of other kinds of yeasts, as well as offering a partial solution to the serious problem of stream pollution. Other pilot plants have been working on cultured yeast grown for human food, which it is hoped can be directed toward relieving the food shortage in many parts of the world.

JUST RESTING

Mr. Smith was a stubborn individual. He would never wear rubbers when it rained nor put on an extra sweater if the nights were chilly. Mrs. Smith was peeved at his obstinacy.

"You never take any good advice," she complained in a nagging fashion.

"Darn good thing for you I don't," he retorted, "or you would still be an old maid."

Mr. Peck's wife had just purchased a grandfather's clock in an antique shop and he was forced to carry it for several blocks.

As he labored along under his burden a man stopped him and asked, "Wouldn't a watch be more convenient?"

Matt—"What are those marks on your nose?"

Henry—"Oh, they are made by glasses."

Matt—"You should learn to tilt your head back, then it would pour out easier."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

If woolen socks get sopping while on a camping trip, fill the toes with small pebbles before hanging them up to dry: this helps keep them from shrinking.

Save your orange peels in the spring and fall, and when they have dried toss them into the fireplace on coolish nights: they kindle quickly and burn with a pleasant aroma.

Fasten that left-over piece of linoleum to the floor of the trunk of your car: wax it liberally, and see how easily grips and trunks slide in and out.

Dip a cloth in household ammonia and place over the rusted spot in the broiler of your range: close the range door for a few minutes and chances are you will be able to wash spot off easily.

If lower part of a window shade is soiled, shade can be reversed to bring clean part into prominence: untack shade from roller; reverse; cut off any damaged edges near the pull-cord and tack back onto roller. Then stitch a new hem, slip stick through this hem and reinsert the pull-cord.

Not Many Survive

FOLSOM KNOCKS TAMO FROM BOX TO WIN 17-4

Wrczykowski, Folsom's lead-off batter, slashed a singled into centerfield off Tamo and the Folsom batters continued to hit the husky righthander hard and drove him to the showers in the second inning. Perry went in but the Folsom batters continued to pound his underhand lobs and Goldsberry finished the last inning. Nevada City was as futile in the batter's box as the pitchers were on the mound and Folsom came out on the long end of a 17-4 score.

Jones, as he has done the past three games, scored for Nevada City as lead-off man. He couldn't get away from one of Stork's fast pitches, stole second and came home on Kosinski's single. Goldsberry tripled to centerfield and Nevada City looked like it was off to the races.

It was short-lived as Wrczykowski singled, Swanston walked, and Stork doubled to score the lead-off man. Simmen flied Swanston home and Brown singled Stork home for a lead the home team never lost.

Nevada City loaded the bases in the second but did not get a man over for a score.

Ryan dumped a bunt and Fouyer threw the ball into right field and Ryan went all the way around. Vose struck out. Wrczykowski got a life on Selander's error, Swanston and Stork walked. Tamo went to the showers. Perry went in to pitch. Simmen singled and was forced at second for the second put-out. Brown walked. Vance struck out but Umpire Piches lost track of the strike count and Vance slashed the fourth strike to center field for a double scoring two runs to make the count 8-2. Ryan struck out to end the inning.

After that the heat and the futility of it all made a listless game. Folsom added three runs in the sixth and six in the eighth. Nevada City picked up two runs in a ninth-inning rally but it was way too late.

DICK ALVARI & CO. TOO MUCH FOR MERCHANTS

Dick Alvari's fast ball, the bane of the Sierra Foothill high school conference this past spring, was too much for the Nevada City Merchants here Sunday afternoon in Pioneer park and the Auburn Maroons dumped the local team 18-1. Alvari struck out 12 and walked two and was rarely in trouble. Tobiassen and Childers each nicked Alvari for two hits and Coley got the only other one he yielded.

For three innings the game went along fine with Wojack yielding but one hit while Alvari was still untouched, but the fourth inning the Maroons blew the lid off. Two hits, six walks, an error and a wild pitch gave the Maroons six runs and the game. The Maroons added nine runs in the late innings but they were superfluous.

Tobiassen scored the Merchants' lone run in the fourth. Alvari hit him with a pitched ball and Yokota made the only error for the visitors to spoil his team-mate's shut-out.

OVER 250 AT SCOUT CAMPOREE ON BANNER MOUNTAIN ON WEEKEND

Approximately 250 Boy Scouts of Tahoe area council participated in the annual camporee atop Banner mountain Saturday and Sunday. Raymond J. Ewan, scout executive of the council, was leader of the camporee.

R. V. Conrad, Nevada City, served as judge of patrols, and awarded participating ratings to Flying Eagle, Troop 15, Gold Flat; Panther and Eagle, Troop 32, Flaming Arrow, Troop 35, and Cobra, Troop 22, all of Grass Valley. Flying Eagle Patrol, Troop 7, Truckee, won a standard rating.

At a court of honor Saturday night, 121 awards were presented including badges to 14 Star Scouts, two Life, and two Eagle Palm awards. The court of honor was followed by camping and forestry demonstration by Ranger Hobart Snider and his assistants from the Bloomfield ranger district of the Tahoe national forest.

Boy scouts of several of the troops participated in the skits and program which was presented around a huge campfire.

Following the preparation of breakfast Sunday morning, the Scouts were conducted on a tour of the Banner Mountain Lookout where Lookout Sam Kasper explained the techniques of watching for forest fires.

Scouts of all faiths attended the Catholic and Protestant church services.

ALL-STAR GAME WILL BE PLAYED TOMORROW NIGHT IN ROSEVILLE

The annual all-star game for the benefit of the injured players fund of the Placer-Nevada league will be played tomorrow night at 8:15 o'clock in Roseville. The competing teams are the northern and southern all stars.

The northern team is composed of players from Auburn, Colfax, Grass Valley, Nevada City and Truckee under the management of Pat Hurley of the Auburn Cubs.

Manager Marvin Haddy yesterday announced Tony Kosinski, league-leading batter; Stan Jones, outfielder, and Tiger Thompson, third base, will represent Nevada City at the game.

Representing the southern team will be players from Lincoln, Folsom, Placerville and the two Roseville teams. Don Noyes of Lincoln will manage this club.

The contest is an annual affair sponsored by the league for the purpose of raising funds for injured players. With the present season now half over quite a number of players have been injured and the fund is in need of additional money to take care of medical needs of the injured.

Tickets are on sale in each city of the league by team members, directors and managers of the various clubs.

Dick Penrose Hurls One-Hitter in Legion Baseball Saturday

Dick Penrose, pitching for Placerville American Legion Junior baseball team, hurled a one-hit masterpiece Saturday in Woodland against the Woodland Legion team as his mates won handily 5-0. Penrose struck out 15, walked two, and didn't yield the hit until the seventh inning. Woodland was to play Placerville in Placerville Sunday morning but failed to show and forfeited the game.

Placerville is expected to play Haggin-Grant Thursday evening in Placerville for one of the games that should decide the championship of the league.

Sierra Nevada Civic Group Meets Friday
